LAVINIA GOES FOR "CRUISE"

The little schooner Lavinia sets sail at ten o'clock this morning for the South Seas on what Captain Weisbarth calls a "cruise." The immediate destination of the schooner is Palmyra Island which lies some 1050 miles southwest of this port in latitude 6 north. This is one of the chain of islands which includes Fanning, Washington and Christmas islands. The island is uninhabited but is very fertile and covered with coconut trees. It is the cocoanuts that Captain Weisbarth says will be his cargo on the return trip. His idea is to anchor off the reef and bring the nuts off in boats.

There is plenty of fresh water on the island and all one has to do to obtain it is to sink a barrel in the land and it soon will be full. There is some guano but most of it has been removed and the remainder is not in sufficient quantity to pay for a trip. Palmyra is not definitely under the control of any nation although when it was last occupied it was supposed to be British soil. Captain Weisbarth expects to be away for two months and possibly for ten weeks. He takes a crew of five men.

The Lavinia took on about two and one-half tons of rock ballast yesterday for stiffening and will throw it out when she gets her cargo. The water tanks were filled and provisions for the voyage taken aboard. The schooner has been thoroughly overhauled and is in first-class condition. A new suit of sails has been bent with the exception of the flying jib which will be bent this morning.

"I am going to cruise around the islands and return to Honolulu," said Captain Weisbarth last night. "If I had those bird skins I wouldn't bring them to this port," he continued with a twinkle in his eye. "I know too much to do that. No, I'm only 'cruising.' I was in with Schlemmer but as I was not getting any regular wages but had to risk not getting anything as I did the last time, I could not afford to do that way."

There is some talk that Weisbarth may command the new schooner that Schlemmer is to purchase for the Laysan Island guano trade. There are also those who are of the opinion that the captain's "cruise" is likely to be a profitable one and that the little schooner may take on feathers and fly to San Francisco. However, who knows?

AORANGI TAKES THE NEXT MAIL

Hurry up and get your letters for the States ready! Mail will be dispatched on the Aorangi of the Canadian-Australian line tomorrow and will reach San Francisco at least a day earlier than that sent on the Mongolia. The latter vessel was scheduled to sail for the coast but has been delayed and will not arrive from the Orient until next Monday. As she has 1700 tons of freight it is not likely that she will be able to get away before Tuesday morning. On this schedule she will not arrive in San Francisco before the 2nd of October. Mail sent on the Aorangi via Victoria will make the trip to San Francisco in at least a day better time and will reach the Atlantic coast much ahead of the Mongolia's mail. It is not often that it is possible to get mail to San Francisco quicker by this route but it was done on the last C.-A. boat, the Manuka.

The next boat from the States will be the Alameda which is due with nine days' mail on Friday. Following her will come the Korea on the 27th. The Manuka will bring the Victoria mail Saturday. Mail from the Colonies will come on the Aorangi tomorrow and from the Orient on the Mongolia next Monday. Mail is coming much more regularly from the coast than it did a few weeks ago. From this time until the end of the year, barring accidents, there will be only two intervals of over seven days, one of them of eight and one of nine days. During July and August there were two periods of twelve days each when there was no mail.

Mongolia is Late.

The Pacific Mail liner Mongolia, which was scheduled to arrive here Saturday, will not reach this port until Monday and will probably sail for the coast on Tuesday. She left Yokohama last Saturday with one of the largest cargoes that an Oriental liner has brought here from the Far East for several months. It consists of 1700 tons of general freight, mostly Japanese and Chinese foodstuffs. There will be room for 175 passengers from Honolulu to San Francisco.

Homeward Bound.

A cable dispatch from Midway announces the safe arrival of Captain Niblack and the U. S. S. Iroquois with supplies and mails. She sailed on the return trip on Saturday and should reach Honolulu about Thursday.

Shipping Notes.

The transport Thomas reached San Francisco safely last Friday.

The sloop Kalulani arrived from Aki's landing yesterday afternoon.

This morning the steamer Mauna Loa should arrive from her regular run to Kona and Kau ports.

The steamer Likiep sailed for Maui and Molokai ports last night with a very light passenger list.

The schooner Alice Cooke sailed for Port Townsend yesterday at 11 a. m. She went up in ballast and will load lumber.

The ship Brodick Castle will sail for San Francisco tomorrow with the remaining 1,000 tons of her nitrate cargo. She discharged 1,700 tons here.

An addition to Naval Row is the old schooner Eclipse which has been towed over from the Inter-Island wharves and anchored among the other old hulks.

Max Schlemmer will sail this week in the Robert Lewers for Port Townsend where he will try to get a smaller schooner to put in the guano trade between this port and San Francisco.
